Residents asking Province to fund Badlands plan

By Bill Rea

The foes of the proposed Cheltenham Badlands parking lot are trying to get the Provincial government involved.

About 30 members of the group calling itself Save the Badlands were on hand Saturday for a rally at the site, and the activities included the circulation of a petition, calling on the Province to get involved.

The Badlands are owned by the Ontario Heritage Trust and managed by Bruce Trail Conservancy.

The site is a deposit of Queenston Shale on the south side of Olde Base Line Road, between Chinguacousy and Creditview Roads. The soil and vegetation have been worn away at the site by erosion, and the result is a formation of red rock with deep gullies running through it.

Concerns have been expressed over the safety of people visiting the site. There is parking area just east of the site that would be able to accommodate 33 cars and two buses. There are also plans to set up a viewing area.

But area residents of the area have been voicing their opposition to the idea.

The petition, addressed to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, stresses the need for community consultation and engagement in development of the site and surrounding lands. It calls on the Province to "fully fund the Cheltenham Badlands Management Plan." It specifies the Plan includes fencing around the site, viewing platforms, boardwalks, trail maintenance, etc.

There is no mention of a parking lot.

Bonnie Ledson, of Save the Badlands, reported yesterday (Wednesday) the petition had drawn a little more than 100 signatures so far. Copies of the petition are available at the General Stores in Cheltenham and Inglewood, Spirit Tree Estate Cidery, Higher Ground Coffee Shop in Belfountain and other locations.

currently no designated parking area, meaning cars have to be parked at the side of the road where there are numerous steep hills. Sightlines in the area are a worry too.

Orangeville man killed in crash

A 51-year-old Orangeville man was killed Tuesday in a crash on Highway 10, north of The Grange Sideroad.

Caledon OPP reports the mishap happened around noon.

They said Lynn Wark was driving a northbound vehicle and for some unknown reason, it crossed the centre line and collided head-on with a southbound gravel hauler.

Police said the victim was pronounced dead at the scene. The driver of the gravel truck was taken to hospital with minor injuries.

Police ask anyone with information on this incident or contact them at 905-584-2241.

Sonia Varaschin murder case

Investigators release video to identify witnesses

A video was released Friday, and police hope it will help in the investigation of the murder of Sonia Varaschin.

During the early morning hours of Aug. 30, 2010, Ms. Varaschin, 42 at the time, was brutally murdered in her residence on Spring Street in Orangeville. She had been reported missing by her family after she failed to show up for work. Her blood-stained Toyota Corolla was located in an alley behind Orangeville Town Hall near Alexandria Park and blood was also found at her home.

The body of the Orangeville nurse was found about a week later (Sept. 5) when a citizen walking her dog chanced on the remains in a wooded area off Beech Grove Sideroad in Caledon.

Since then, a multi-jurisdictional Major Case Management (MCM) investigation, led by the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch (CIB), with the assistance of the Orangeville Police Service (OPS) has continued to follow up on all information and tips received from the public.

Part of the investigation has been focusing on analyzing video evidence obtained by police from around the various crime scenes relating to this murder. Investigators have released a surveillance video taken of a gazebo located in Alexandra Park off Second Street and First Avenue. The park is behind the Orangeville Town Hall and is in an area very close to where Ms. Varaschin's vehicle was left early the morning she disappeared.

The video depicts two people in a gazebo prior to them walking away at about 5:58 a.m. that morning (Aug. 30). Police would like to identify these individuals to speak with them.

The quality of this video is grainy, but investigators are hopeful that these individuals will recognize themselves or that someone will be able to identify them and come forward to the police. These individuals are potential witnesses and are not suspects in this case. Anyone who recognizes these people is asked to contact the investigators immediately.

The Gazebo video link has also been uploaded to the OPP youtube page at <http://www.opp.ca/media/gazebo/thegazebo.avi>

OPP is encouraging everyone to view the video and contact investigators with any information.

This investigation is continuing under the direction of Detective Inspector Shawn Glassford of CIB.

"It has been four years since Sonia Varaschin was brutally murdered and we continue to have a dedicated multi-jurisdictional investigative team actively working on her case," Glassford stated.

"Our investigators are as committed to finding Sonia Varaschin's killer today as we were when it began in 2010," he added. "We are determined to bring justice to Sonia and her family and to that end we will continue to follow up on all tips and leads we receive and are asking the public to continue provide information to our investigators. No tip is too small or insignificant. In fact, it could be the missing piece of the puzzle that we need to solve this case."

OPP continues to offer a $50,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the murder of Ms. Varaschin.

Investigators are asking anyone with information to contact the OPS Tip Line at 519-941-2522, or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477 if you wish to remain anonymous.

Tilson to chair Arctic Conference

The Parliament of Canada, under the auspices of the Canada-Europe Parliamentary Association, will host the 11th Conference of Parliamentarians of the Arctic Region (CPAR) from Sept. 9 to 11 in Whitehorse, Yukon.

Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson, president of the Canada-Europe Parliamentary Association and Sara Olsvig, MP from Denmark and chair of the Standing Committee of Parliamentarians of the Arctic Region (SCPAR), will preside over the meetings.

As co-chairs of the conference, Tilson and Olsvig will welcome 150 delegates representing parliaments of the Arctic states (Canada, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Russia, Sweden and U.S.A) and the European Parliament; indigenous peoples' organizations that have permanent participant status at the Arctic Council; and parliaments of nations and organizations that have observer status at the Arctic Council.

"I am looking forward to what is sure to be a positive and productive conference," Tilson said.

"We will be discussing a variety of topics from the environment to northern economics; all of which are of great importance to the Arctic states that will be in attendance."

The Canadian Parliament actively supports Arctic parliamentary cooperation and Arctic Council initiatives under Canada's chairmanship of the Council. Nunavut MP Leona Aglukkaq, Minister of the Environment, Minister of the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency, Minister for the Arctic Council and Chair of the Arctic Council, will deliver a keynote address at the opening session of the conference this coming Tuesday (Sept. 9). Delegates will also be welcomed at the opening session by the Yukon Premier Darrell Pasloski.

Meetings will continue through Sept. 11 with sessions on sustainable infrastructure development, governance models, enhancing northern economies and environmental challenges.

CPAR and SCPAR pursue initiatives to further Arctic cooperation and act as a parliamentary forum to discuss and advance action on issues relevant to the work of the Arctic Council. The main outcome of the 11th Conference will be a Conference Statement, with recommendations to the Arctic Council and to the governments of the eight Arctic states and the institutions of the European Union, as well as to other international organizations. Between conferences, SCPAR, which has observer status at the Arctic Council, monitors progress in implementing the recommendations of the Conference Statement.

The Canadian delegation consists of Senators Percy Downe, Daniel Lang, Ghislain Maltais, Michel Rivard and Members of Parliament Dean Allison, Joyce Bateman, Dennis Bevington, Corneliu Chisu, Yvonne Jones, Ryan Leef, Beverley Shipley and Tilson.

new spot: No parking lot” and “How can you preserve, When you’ve no funds reserved?” Barb Shaughnessy, who is running for the Ward 1 Regional seat on Caledon council, addressed the audience, stressing the need to take care of the land. “Our community prides itself with being great stewards of the land,” she commented.

She also observed part of the problem is with the popularity the site has received, with tourists visiting and walking all over the grounds. “The Badlands are being loved to death,” she said. The shale is estimated to be some 445 million years old. The site used to be farmland until excessive clearing and grazing led to erosion. Shaughnessy said the lands have been worn away considerably from all the attention.

Chase the Dream was a success

By Bill Rea

Ominous looking weather early in the morning might have kept attendance down a bit, but organizers weren’t complaining about the success of the third annual Chase the Dream. Organizer Dave Heydon said last week they didn’t have the final total of money raised for the day, but he said it would be around $42,000. The event was in support of Chase Galea, a local seven-year-old boy who has cerebral palsy and hearing loss. The funds raised from the event will go toward trust fund that’s been set up to provide him with a better life. Haydon agreed the weather probably played some role, as attendance was about 220; down a bit from last year. “But still a very successful day and a lot of fun,” he said. Heydon and his wife Mariah were very thankful for the support the effort drew.

“We want to thank the many volunteers and the generous sponsors,” he said. “It wouldn’t have been possible without them.” Cash stolen near Mono Mills A quantity of Canadian and American currency was reported stolen June 11 from a home on Rolling Meadows Crescent near Mono Mills. Caledon OPP reports the incident happened sometime between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., with the person or people responsible getting into the house through an unlocked door. Police are asking anyone with information about this incident to contact them at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

OPP concerned motorcycle deaths heading for seven-year high

With 26 motorcycle fatalities on record so far this year and at least two more months of the motorcycle season remaining, OPP is concerned that 2014 motorcycle deaths could reach a seven-year high.

As of Aug. 18, 25 motorcyclists and one passenger have died in motorcycle crashes within OPP jurisdiction this year. The high number has prompted police to share some facts and dispel some myths relating to the fatal motorcycle collisions it investigates in an effort to raise awareness about motorcycle safety.

Earlier this month, OPP Aircraft Enforcement Patrol (AEP) clocked a motorcyclist travelling at 210 km/h, charging him under Ontario's stunt driving law. The AEP airplane conducts patrol throughout the province and is highly effective at spotting motorcycles and other vehicles travelling at high rates of speed.

"Other than a careless few that we come across during our enforcement operations, the OPP believes that Ontario motorcyclists in general recognize that they are a vulnerable road user and demonstrate safe, defensive driving," observed OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair, provincial commander of traffic safety and operational support. "We are relying on motorcyclists and the motoring public to work with us and join in our efforts to keep motorcycling safe. The solution is simple: ride and drive within the law."

Myth: Young, inexperienced motorcyclists are the most vulnerable, at-risk riders and account for the largest number of victims who die in motorcycle crashes in Ontario.

Fact: From 2008 to 2014 (as of Aug. 18), only 16 of the 175 motorcyclists who have died on Ontario roads were younger than 25. The age group with the highest rate of fatality is 45 to 54, which comprises 48 of the 175 victims. The second highest age group is 55 to 64, with 39 victims in that category. Combined, these two age groups account for almost half of the fatalities (87).

Myth: Those who die in motorcycle crashes are doing something wrong at the time of the incident. Like other drivers, motorcyclists can avoid crashes if they drive properly and within the law.

Fact: Between 2008 and 2014, for 50 of the 175 motorcycle victims, the driver of the motorcycle was driving properly at the time.

Far too often, the actions of another driver are a causal factor in motorcycle crashes. Motorcycles are much harder to see than other vehicles. It is important for riders to wear high visibility equipment and put themselves in the proper lane positioning to increase chances of being seen by other motorists. Motorist sharing the road with motorcyclists need to maintain a keen awareness of surroundings and always be on watch for motorcycles, especially in blind spots before changing lanes.

Myth: Motorcyclists are at far greater risk of crashing when riding on wet roads.

Fact: While true that riding on wet roads places an additional risk on riders, 158 of the 175 motorcyclists who have died between 2008 and 2014 (to date) were riding on dry roads.

Other facts relating to the 175 OPP-investigated motorcycle fatalities from 2008 to 2014 (as of Aug. 18) are that 168 of the victims were the drivers, seven were passengers; and 156 of the victims were men, 19 were women.

Contributing factors in these mishaps include speed in 43 of the deaths; loss of control in 29; alcohol in 21; failure to yield in 20; and inattention in 18.

School's back this week, so be careful

With another school year just starting, there is no more important time than now for officers within the Central Region of OPP to urge drivers to slow down and watch for school buses in an effort to keep children safe.

OPP would like to take this time to remind motorists to pay close attention when meeting or following a school bus. Motorists in both directions must stop when approaching a stopped school bus with its stop arm extended and red lights flashing.

They cannot start moving until the red lights have stopped flashing, the stop arm has been retracted and the bus has started to move.

Patience on the part of drivers is encouraged, as many young children will be taking the bus for the first time. This means they might require extra time boarding and departing the bus until they are familiar with the routine.

For more information on school bus safety, visit the Ministry of Transportation's website at www.mto.gov.on.ca

Stunt driving charge in Caledon village

A Caledon OPP officer conducting speed enforcement spotted a vehicle doing more than 60 km-h over the limit Aug. 30.

Police said the officer was in the area of Highway 10 and Mistywood Drive in Caledon village at about 8 a.m. and clocked a southbound Nissan Altima going 136 km-h in a posted 60 zone.

The 26-year-old driver from Etobicoke was charged with racing a motor vehicle.

Plowing Match went last Thursday in Caledon

Former Inglewood area resident David Julian was back last Thursday, driving this 1953 Massey Harris model.

It wasn't just horses pulling plows. Dirk Hofman of Innisfil was driving his Belgians King and Fred.

The weather was great last Thursday for the 89th annual Plowing Match, put on by the Peel-Dufferin Plowmen's Association.

Hosted by the Johnston Family at their Torbram Road farm, the event attracted a good crowd and lots of fun activity.

"It's a pretty good way of getting your community together," Peel Regional Chair and CEO Emil Kolb.

Among the contests that took place, Caledon Mayor Marolyn Morrison won the Mayors' Plowing Challenge.

And Terra Cotta Resident Julia Thompson was named Peel-Dufferin's Queen on the furrow, winning over Palgrave's Victoria Wilhelm.

In her address to the judges,

Thompson spoke about Women in Agriculture, stating she comes from a long line of farmers on both her mother and father's side.

"I am a woman of agriculture," she said, adding farm women have always done more than just cook.

When she was young and her father had a seed business, she remembered her mother taking her and her brother along when she made deliveries.

"Dad called it 'the squawk and talk' delivery service," she said.

"Farm women have always had an important role on the family farm, but, like everything else, it's a role that is constantly changing," she observed.

Di Cosola seeking fourth term on board

By Bill Rea

Frank Di Cosola likes his job as trustee for Caledon and Dufferin County on the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board.

He enjoys it so much, he's announced he will be running for a fourth term in next month's municipal elections.

"It's been very gratifying to see the changes," he remarked, adding there will be more changes in the next four years that will have to be addressed.

They will include addressing the combination of technology-based and inquiry-based education. The role of the trustee will be changing, requiring experience and "strategic thinking."

He also said the board has been recognized for its best practices, and he said that's the result of support and trust of the Catholic school community.

Mr. Di Cosola is the father of two daughters, and the youngest is just starting high school at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School.

"As a father, I'm well aware of the issues at hand," he said, stressing the importance of academic, social and spiritual aspects of Catholic education.

"I welcome challenge every term," Mr. Di Cosola said, commenting on his chances for re-election. "I respect the opinions and choices of the community."

"To be an active trustee is most important," he added, pointing out he has sat on three Town of Caledon committees; Graffiti, Pam Am Games hosting and Arts Advisory.

"That gives me a fairly good pulse of the community," he said.

A Bolton resident for 17 years, Mr. Di Cosola previously was a member of the Toronto Catholic District School Board, where he served as trustee for two terms from 1988 to 1994.

Ken O'Brien, co-chair of this year's International Plowing Match being held in Simcoe County, was on hand to bring greetings.

Peel board students are going to see more stress on math

By Bill Rea

The Peel District School Board will be increasing its emphasis on mathematics in the new school year.

The math test scores have been dropping over the last couple of years, and Caledon Trustee Stan Cameron said this is an effort to reverse that.

“The harsh reality is that our Grade 3 and 6 (provincial test) scores in mathematics have fallen steadily over the last five years,” Director of Education Tony

Political rookie running for trustee’s job

By Bill Rea

Tony Megilo has been interested in what goes on in the community, and he’d like to build on that.

Megilo has announced he will seek the trustee seat for Caledon and Dufferin County on the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board.

He has been a resident of Bolton for a little more than a year, and he said this will be his first venture into the political arena.

“I’m not going to complain about something if there’s something I can do about it,” he said.

Among the things Megilo said he wants to see is more accommodation for before and after-school daycare. He would want Pontes was quoted as saying last week in the Toronto Star. “And while our Grade 9 math scores have improved, there are still too many students performing below provincial expectations, particularly in the applied level. That is not inspiring. That is not a definition of greatness. And not what our students deserve.”

Cameron said the declining math scores have been experienced across the province. He said the latest numbers for Peel have not been released, but “it’s con-trustees to look in the board’s budget for more money that could be allocated to places where parents want it.

“What ever’s more important to the parents right now,” Megilo said is a priority. The father of two also pointed to the growth coming in the area, wanting to make sure the Catholic system doesn’t take a back seat to the other religions, adding he also wants to make sure the taxes of Catholic supporters go to the right board.

Megilo is a skilled tradesman in the auto collision area for the Toronto Transit Commission, and he’s also been a union representative for about five years. He said that experience has taught him about negotiation and dealing with people.

Megilo was rather fatalistic when it came to commenting on his chances of election.

“It’s always hard to beat an incumbent,” he said, adding there is a steep learning curve involved in being a trustee. “I promise to do my best and I’d be very accessible.”

Graduate - Lindsay Bontje

Charlie and Nancy Bontje of Picton are thrilled to announce the graduation of their daughter Lindsay with a Bachelor of Arts Honours Specialization in Anthropology with distinction from the University of Western Ontario. Lindsay was awarded the University of Western Ontario Gold Medal for achieving the highest average in Anthropology. This summer Lindsay studied “Paper Restoration in Books and Archival Documents” in San Gemini, Italy in preparation for graduation school. She plans to continue her studies at U.W.O. in the Masters of Library and Information Science Program. Proud grandmothers are Elva Davis of Caledon and Nellie Bontje of Tottenham. Poppa and Opa would have been so proud of your achievements. Congratulations Lindsay! Your entire family is so proud of you!

cerning for sure.”

The number of Grade 3 students reading at or about the Provincial standards has dropped in the last five years from 71 to 67 per cent, Cameron said. And the Grade 6 numbers dropped from 61 to 54 per cent over the same period.

“It certainly has our attention,” Cameron said, adding teachers in the board have been attending Math Camp to pick up new methods and teaching ideas. He also said there will be efforts to incorporate math instruction with other subjects. There are also efforts being made to get parents involved in helping their children with their homework.

“We’re looking forward to moving forward in helping our kids improve,” he said.

AN EASY START TO HIGH SCHOOL

The first day of school was a rather fun one Tuesday at Humberview Secondary School in Bolton. The day was set aside for orientation of the Grade 9 students, getting their first real taste of high school. Assisted by Advetureworks Associates of Hamilton and older students acting as mentors, the new students had a day of group session, games, team building and getting to know their new school.

Man charged with refusing to provide sample

A 28-year-old man from Brampton was charged with failing to provide a breath sample after an Aug. 10 incident.

Caledon OPP reports a concerned citizen contacted them at about 11 p.m. about a possible impaired driver heading south on Highway 10, near King Street. Officers were able to find a white Infinity heading south on Highway 410 at Mayfield Road. The officer who approached the driver detected a strong smell of alcohol on his breath, so he demanded a sample of his breath. The driver refused and he was charged. His licence was suspended on the spot and his car was impounded for seven days.

Annual quilt raffle part of Kleinburg Binder Twine Festival

The 2014 Kleinburg Binder Twine’s annual raffle quilt is now on display at the Kleinburg Pharmacy in Canadiana Square.

This year’s quilt is a queen size pink and green, Little bit of Lace themed quilt. The quilt squares are entries from the 2013 quilt square contest. Last year’s fabric bundles included a small amount of lace for participants to include.

For those unable to get to the Kleinburg, the quilt can be viewed on the Festival’s website www.bindertwine.ca

The annual raffle quilt is a one of a kind sewing masterpiece made with the entries from the previous year’s Quilt Square Contest. Avid sewers can enter a quilt square in the yearly contest. Many of the entries are sewn by local residents and it is not difficult to see how many unique squares there are, made by very talented sewers.

The annual Quilt Square Contest is one of the Festival’s oldest traditions. The contest was initiated in 1982 when the group of Kleinburg ladies responsible for making a raffle quilt for the Festival were no longer able to do so. A suggestion was made to have the Festival Quilt a community project, so participants could sew a quilt square and with sufficient entries a raffle quilt could be made. During the winter, the quilt squares are sewn together to make a quilt top. The top is then hand stitched together with a batting and backing. This process is also known as quilting and the Nobleton United Church Quilters take several six-to-eight-hour days to complete this step. The Binder Twine quilt echoes the Festival’s community spirit, volunteers working together to create a work of art.

Binder Twine is this Saturday (Sept. 6). The Quilt will be on display at the Quilt Booth.

Visitors to the booth can purchase tickets for $2 each or three for $5. Prior to the Festival, tickets can be purchased from any participating Kleinburg merchant. This year’s quilt is valued at $1,800 and the money raised from the raffle will go to the Kleinburg Public School Library.

Visitors to the Quilt Booth will also get a glimpse of next year’s quilt by viewing the entries for this year’s Quilt Square Contest and have an opportunity to participate in the Viewer’s Choice Awards by voting for their favourite quilt square. One might think this is an easy task, drop by the quilt booth and decide on your favourite.

As the annual Festival and the famous Queen Contest comes to a close, the newly crowned Binder Twine Queen performs her first official duty and selects the winning quilt raffle ticket. It’s a Festival highlight not to be missed and an opportunity to win a treasured piece of Kleinburg history.

Schomberg Street Gallery will stop traffic

The sixth annual Schomberg Street Gallery will take place Sept. 14 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

It’s an outdoor exhibition and sale of fine art and crafts, set against a backdrop of heritage buildings and century homes in the downtown core of Schomberg.

New this year: A section of Main Street will be closed to traffic for this much-anticipated event. Tents will line the street, allowing visitors to meet the artists and mingle with other show-goers. The Community Hall and Periwinkle Gallery will be open as well.

Come for the gallery, but be prepared to stay all day. Find a spot at one of the streetside cafés serving homemade goodies, or order something hearty from the Lions Club barbecue.

“I love going to this great show, full of energy and gorgeous art pieces,” commented Sue Iaboni, president of Arts Society King. “No need to make the arduous trek into the city when we have this beautiful outdoor exhibition right here in King.”

This free event is for art lovers of all ages, and there will be a wealth of talent to choose from. The range of media includes oil, acrylic, watercolour, photography, wood, glass, metal, pottery, textiles and jewellery.

Morrison's service recognized in tribute by Headwaters Arts

By Bill Rea

Mayor Marolyn Morrison has been serving the community for many years, and there were several people who recently joined Headwaters Arts in acknowledging that.

Councillor Allan Thompson said Morrison has been a "fantastic steward of the issues in Caledon," pointing out she was instrumental in getting countryside mayors together, and has been good at collaborating with other municipalities.

"She has been a good caretaker," he added.

"We all appreciate the leadership that Marolyn has shown," Thompson remarked. "Marolyn has never shied away from an issue."

Peel Region Chair and CEO Emil Kolb offered his congratulations for all that Headwaters Arts has accomplished over the last couple of years.

He also reflected on the 11 years Morrison's been mayor.

"I think Mayor Morrison has always made a commitment to do what's best for the Town of Caledon and the Region of Peel," he remarked. "I think she's done a wonderful, wonderful job."

"What impresses me the most is she's not afraid to stand up for what she believes in," he added.

Kolb also observed Morrison and her husband John plan to travel a lot after she leaves office.

"Enjoy every minute," he said. "You certainly earned it all."

Morrison recalled when she was elected to her first office (Trustee on the Peel Board of Education in 1988), Kolb, who had just been re-elected Mayor of Caledon, invited her to his office and told her that if there was anything he could do to help her in the job, she was to call him.

Morrison said she has sometimes wondered how she was able to get elected, first as a trustee, then Regional councillor in 1994 and mayor in 2003. She said a lot of people helped in those campaigns, and they have stayed with her.

She also recalled that not long after becoming mayor, she started feeling pressures from developers, that got more aggressive.

She commented that 95 per cent of developers are committed to excellence and doing their word well "There are just a few who aren't," she added.

Morrison said she started feeling threatened in 2007, noticing cars following her at night, something she said made her more angry than nervous.

She was also served with a lawsuit, which she said made her more nervous than being followed at night.

But she stressed she was not ready to give into developers. Morrison recalled writing about it in one of her newspaper columns, asking people if they wanted developers planning the town.

"My position was, of course, Caledon should plan Caledon," she said.

Morrison said her husband John was also accosted, and threatened to get his wife on side. and then he was assaulted outside their home.

"It was quite something," Morrison said. "There's so much more to being mayor than just chairing the council meetings."

The following day, she said the police sent a specialty team to the house. "I hope you both have your wills up to date," she recalled one of the officers saying.

It was around this time that a lump in her husband's neck was diagnosed as cancerous, and one of her sons was serving in Afghanistan. And there were allegations that led to her being investigated by the police.

"I was squeaky clean," she said, describing the strategy that needs to be followed at such a time. "You cannot ignore it. You have to go after these people."

Morrison said she wasn't planning to run in 2010, but as those issues mounted, she told her husband her inclination was to dig in her heels and fight.

"That's the girl I married," was her husband's reply. "Go for it."

Earlier this year, Jeffrey Granger was sentenced to three years in prison for breach of trust by a public official, accepting a secret commission and fraud. Part of the charges involved an attempt to discredit Morrison which lead to the police investigation.

Morrison maintained she had only done what the people of Caledon wanted her to do.

Morrison also reflected that Caledon does support the arts.

"It's been a little slow coming, but I believe council really does care," she said.

Morrison studied fine arts at university, and she recalled trying to get an art gallery established at Town Hall when she became mayor, in an effort to spruce up the walls.

"It's a wonderful opportunity to showcase local art," she observed.

Wayne Baguley, past-president of Headwaters Arts, commented on how much Morrison has done to promote arts in the community.

"We're doing very, very well," he said, although he added there's still a way to go.

He also observed that bringing the various arts in the area together is a huge undertaking, and he said they need plenty of support to continue the effort.

"Please be generous with the arts," he said. "Support the arts."

"It's all about passion," he added. "It could be a hobby. It could be a profession."

Town to hold Greenbelt session

The Greenbelt Plan requires the Town of Caledon to provide a map(s) showing known key natural heritage and hydrologic features, as well as any associated minimum vegetation protection zones.

These features are found within the Greenbelt Plan's Natural System within the Protected Countryside Area.

The Town will be hosting an open house to enable the public to learn more about the identification and mapping of the Greenbelt Plan features project, review work done to date, meet the project team and bring concerns to the attention of the Town's Project Manager.

It will be Sept. 15 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East. There will be a short presentation at 7:30 p.m.

The identification and mapping of the Greenbelt Plan features will form the basis for applying the Natural Heritage System policies contained in the Greenbelt Plan.

For more information, contact Senior Policy Planner Tim Manley for the Town at 905-584-2272, ext. 4285 or by email at tim.manley@caledon.ca

It's that time of year to be extra careful while driving or walking

We say it every year at this time, and the message still seems so worthwhile.

Kids are back in school as of this week, so everyone has to be extra careful, and that goes for motorists, pedestrians, cyclists and anyone else who uses the road.

Granted, the summer we have just finished was not the nicest one of recent memory, at least in terms of weather. But it was a down time for many, including the kids, and now we are all back into the routine.

That can add up to dangerous situations. Youngsters walking to or from school may not remember all of the safety rules — being kids, they might be inclined to forget. And the adults among us might not appreciate the need to be extra careful to compensate for the lack of attention on the part of youngsters. They are likely either excited about the start of school and seeing old friends, down in the proverbial dumps about the end of summer vacation, or both.

That's why there's more of an obligation on motorists.

Granted, a lot of students in Caledon take the bus to school. No one needs a reminder that there are special rules when it comes to driving around school buses; not to mention the heavy penalties for those who violate them. But many of us have seen, somehow wondering if our eyes were playing tricks on us, motorists drive right by school buses when they should have stopped.

We don't think it's a case that these people are bad in some way. Like kids, and anyone else, for that matter, they make mistakes.

Accidents can happen, and sometimes with tragic results.

Let us not forget a year ago this week, when a young Toronto girl was struck and killed on her way to school, just one day before what would have been her 15th birthday.

That's why these annual reminders are necessary.

But there is an onus on the young people too, and it's up to parents and schools to issue the necessary reminders. These kids have an obligation to look out for their own safety. After all, they do have the most to lose.

Our Readers Write Run for Terry Fox

Please join us Sept. 14 for the 34th annual Terry Fox Run, raising funds for cancer research, sponsored for the 15th year by the Rotary Club of Palgrave.

The Palgrave Terry Fox Run will be held at Stationlands Park, which is on Brawton Drive at Highway 50, starting at 9 a.m. There will be a free breakfast, starting at 8 a.m., served by Palgrave Rotarians. Participants have the opportunity to run, walk or bike for up to 10-km along the Caledon Trailway. The Palgrave firefighters and the OPP will be there to assist as well.

Donations and pledges can be made on-line at www.terryfox.org/Run (run site # 2164). Pledge sheets are also available at various stores and locations in the Palgrave, Caledon East and surrounding areas. Bring your pledge sheets (including on-line ones) to the event. Registration will start at 8 a.m.

If you require further information, please feel free to contact Tom Fuller at 905-880-3774 or by email to tom.fuller55@gmail.com

Palgrave participants raised $10,181 last year, an important part of the $12.6 million dollars raised across Ontario. Since 2000, our community has raised $112,363 for the Terry Fox Foundation for cancer research.

Well done to all of the runners, hikers and bikers at our site here in Palgrave. We look forward to seeing you again this year.

Jones should be able to use housing allowance

I am a citizen of Caledon and I have read the articles printed about MPP Sylvia Jones's spending on housing allowance.

I think people need to use their time more productively and contribute to their community rather than making hypocritical complaints about Jones's spending on accommodations. While I am not a fan of the Conservative party, I find Jones to be a person of integrity and she works very hard to serve her community. Our MPP makes much more important decisions than whether or not it is a good idea to commute or stay the night.

If the majority of residents in Caledon did not trust Jones with that decision, she would not have been re-elected.

Frankly, I find the complaints hypocritical. If any one of us who works downtown was given an allowance to enable us to stay downtown rather than commute when needed, we would utilize that benefit.

I think Sylvia Jones works hard and if she decides she needs to use the housing allowance offered to her prior to her appointment, she is entitled to use it.

It happened today

It was supposed to be a time for Canadians to show the Russians their superiority in hockey, but things got quickly reversed.

In the long awaited Summit Series, the Soviets opened the festivities by knocking Canadian hockey vanity on its butt, winning the first game 7-3 in Montreal.

But the good guys got their act together and tied the series by winning the second of eight games 4-1 in Toronto.

That happened this day, Sept. 4, 1972.

Another summer's come and gone

There was a cartoon strip I saw more than 40 years ago.

If memory serves, it was in Mad magazine. It depicted a young boy and girl engaged in that time-honoured summer vacation activity of doing nothing (having been a kid once, I spent many summer hours in that pursuit). The girl was complaining that summer vacation was nothing but a bore, and she could hardly wait for school to start again. The boy, being a typical boy of his time (I ought to know), naturally wondered if the girl was out of her mind. She pointed out that at least while they were in school, kids had something to look forward to.

"Like what?" the boy demanded.

"Summer vacation," was the reply.

School kids are back in school this week.

I've never been a parent. So speaking as an adult, I can only come at this annual happening from two ways.

As a community newspaper editor, I look forward to getting back to the regular routine. As monotonous as they can sometimes be, I do miss the regular regime of council meetings and other political events that always wind down during July and August.

But there is also the point of view of a big person with a good memory of what it was like to be a kid. And I do remember many of the things that happened during the 19 years that the system was trying to educate me at the elementary, secondary and post-secondary levels. There are lots of good memories, and plenty of bad ones too. And there are the vast majority of recollections of things that are just routine. Some of the teachers were pure inspirations, and others one would prefer to forget. And others have grown in my estimation as time has gone on.

I still remember returning from lunch one afternoon in Grade 1, and Miss Late spending part of the afternoon drilling into her charges the nuances of the words "could," "would" and "should," with particular emphasis on making sure we didn't forget about the "L." And I remember the day in Grade 8 when Mr. Hocevar hammered into us the difference between the words "stationary" and "stationery" (as lousy a speller as I am, I can't recall any time I've messed up on either of those two words).

There are lots of other examples, like the day the same Mr. Hocevar strolled about the classroom brandishing a wooden cubic-foot box that had been sitting on his desk for some weeks, outlining various geometric facts (math was the man's specialty). I'll bet you didn't know that a cubic foot will hold 6.25 gallons of water (or beer).

Please don't ask me how I remember such stuff. I just do.

Need an anchor for your Trivial Pursuits team?

But I also remember the carefree times of being on summer vacation, even if it involved a lot of doing nothing. I've always counted it as a factor of luck that the first moon landings happened in July, when I was able to watch it all without having to worry about school the next day.

It wasn't all idleness, however. The days of stay-at-home moms were not quite history, and my mother had the time to drag me for swimming lessons. The word "drag" is only a little appropriate. I rather enjoyed it, and became a pretty good swimmer in the process.

And speaking of things to look forward to, there was the family summer trip. My dad always took his vacation the last two weeks before school started, and we always went to a fishing camp on Lake Nipissing. My old man was heavily into fishing, as were his two sons (at least in their formative years). Mom kind of went along for the ride, although she was no slouch when it came to baiting a hook. She also liked the fact that the leaves would start changing colour while we were up there.

We always used to come home the Sunday of Labour Day weekend, leaving Labour Day itself to go to the Exhibition.

That whole routine, of the long drive north, fishing (occasionally a successful exercise, and there are pictures of me holding the 6.5-pound pike I caught when I was eight to prove it), cruising about the lake in the boat, swimming in the lake, the long drive home (my dad smoked and wouldn't allow any windows to be opened because he didn't like the draft — fathers were allowed to get away with such things in those days), ordering in Chinese for dinner the night we got home (a vacation tradition my wife and I still observe to this day) and going to the Ex. When I was a kid, these all added up to the end of summer vacation, and the advent of another school year.

Kids dread this time of year, just as I did when I was a kid. Having never been a parent, I can only imagine the feeling of relief I would have at a time like this. Parents don't have to worry about finding things for their kids to do. Mothers don't have to drag their kids to swimming lessons, the way my mother did, any more.

But there has been that other time-honoured tradition of mothers going through the stores to buy some of the most God-awful stuff imaginable for their kids to wear to school. I remember some of the God-awful stuff my mother dressed me in.

Like I stated above, I look at this time as an adult who remembers what it was like to be a little kid, and a big kid too.

As I got older, I came to look forward to the start of the school year.

I think I reached the stage that I couldn't wait to get out of the summer jobs and get back to class.

And after university, I spent two years waiting tables before deciding to get into journalism school. Those last two years of learning were probably the happiest I spent in school.

Perhaps the explanation is a matter of simplicity — the closer the adult responsibilities get, the more attractive school seems. That's probably the main reason why I'm envious at this time of year. It reminds me of a time when I had to answer to dumb teachers rather than dumb bosses, when I didn't have to worry about paying phone and cell phone and hydro bills, when the words "income tax" were meaningless words my parents spoke to each other at a certain time of the year.

As well, summer vacation is not an easy time for people in my line of work. People who I am normally able to get in touch with easily are sometimes unavailable, because they are away on their own vacations. I don't like bothering people under such circumstances, having received a couple of work related calls on my cell when I was up north early last month (I have to say that without exception, the people calling me were most understanding when they realized they had caught me in my downtime).

So now the kids are back in the regular routine of school, and the rest of us are back in the regular routine of doing what we do to make a living.

Yes, the change is always nice, but so is addressing the stuff we're used to.

But there are always little differences. Remember, we have elections to look forward to next month.

Government's National Conservation Plan will ensure sustainability

Unlike the previous government, our government is fulfilling the commitments we have made to Canadians.

The Prime Minister's announcement of the National Conservation Plan provides a long-term vision for conservation efforts across Canada and brings together all Canadians who are working to conserve and restore our lands, waters, and wildlife.

The National Conservation Plan is a major accomplishment when it comes to ensuring the sustainability of our nation's greatest resources, contribute to our country's long-term prosperity and further position Canada as a world leader in conservation. The Plan will focus on conserving and restoring Canada's ecosystems, and connecting Canadians to nature. Prime Minister Harper's announcement celebrates and builds on Canada's collective conservation achievements and provides funding of $252 million over five years for conserving ecologically sensitive lands, supporting voluntary conservation and restoration action, restoring wetlands, strengthening marine and coastal conservation, and improving access to wildlife areas and green spaces for Canadians.

Under the National Conservation Plan, parks, national wildlife areas and other green spaces will play an important role, both in terms of protecting Canada's natural heritage and providing Canadians with opportunities to experience nature. For example, urban and suburban Canadians will be more aware of the natural areas in their communities and the opportunities for outdoor recreational activities that exist.

It also encourages Canadians from all sectors and regions to get involved in environmental conservation efforts and collaborate on creative approaches that achieve tangible environmental, economic and social benefits.

I am proud of the work our government has already done to conserve and restore habitats and species for Canadians now and in the future and the National Conservation Plan builds on this strong record.

Since May 2014, and in addition to our National Conservation Plan, our government has tabled legislation to create two national parks and announced funding for 85 community conservation projects across the country.

Since 2006, our government has made a six-fold expansion of the Nahanni National Park Reserve, which is a significant conservation achievement. Over 4,000 square kilometres of ecologically sensitive private lands has been secured and we have added an area nearly twice the size of Vancouver Island to the network of federal protected areas. We have designated three new marine protected areas and introduced a legislation to create the Rouge National Urban Park.

We have supported partners in the delivery of hundreds of local projects to protect species at risk and their habitats. We have improved water quality in the Great Lakes, Lake Simcoe and Lake Winnipeg, rehabilitated recreational fisheries habitat, and are working to clean up contaminated sites.

Our role in helping Canadians to connect with nature is also not new. For example, through the My Parks Pass program, we are assisting families with young children and new Canadians living in urban areas with opportunities to learn camping and nature-related skills.

Our country's beautiful natural landscape and rich biodiversity are an integral part of our identity as Canadians. With the National Conservation Plan, our government is building a stronger Canada, a country that cares about conserving its natural heritage country where we can all enjoy the beauty of nature from coast to coast to coast.

With this strong track record as a base, the National Conservation Plan will allow us to continue to protect and enjoy our nation's rich biodiversity. Our government has launched a concrete plan that will not only protect our environment, but also have economic and social benefits for all Canadians.

Nature matters to Canadians. The National Conservation Plan encourages and enables Canadians to take action in their communities. Together, we will continue to find new ways to work together to protect our lands, waters, and wildlife.

Strong reform needed in Province's developmental services sector

Recently there has been discussion surrounding the Provincial government's announcement of new funding for the developmental services sector in the 2014 Budget.

I wanted to share some thoughts on this issue, as it is an important one.

In the fall of 2012, Progressive Conservative MPP Christine Elliot (Whitby-Oshawa) began calling for the creation of a special committee, known as a Select Committee, to study the developmental services sector in Ontario. When the PC motion to create this committee was finally passed, the Select Committee on Developmental Services was convened, and over the past two years, I had been part of the committee. Its purpose was to bring recommendations to the government on how to improve services for the many Ontarians with a developmental disability who have the right to work, live and participate in our community. After travelling across Ontario and hearing from individuals, families and organizations dealing with developmental disabilities, it became clear to the committee that there are many areas where improvement is not only needed, but essential. We presented our report to the legislature July 22, 2014.

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

First and foremost, the committee believes it is critical to eliminate wait times for individuals. These individuals and families have described to the committee the dire situations that they face every day struggling to get by without the necessary funds, programs and access to care that they need immediately.

One of the central problems with the way the system is currently structured is how bits and pieces of funding and programming come from 10 different ministries and agencies within the government. This fragmented care and funding model has led to backlogs and wait lists that must be eliminated. Many individuals and families have shared with me how they have been strung along in this system for many months and in some cases, years. In response, the committee has called for, in addition to 46 other recommendations, one ministry to manage this programming and funding of developmental services.

We must streamline the process so that wait times and fractured ministerial processes no longer stand in the way of proper care for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. So long as we continue to spend more precious funding dollars on a broken system, we will continue to be faced by the same systemic problems we have spent so long trying to address.

If you are interested in reading the final report from the committee, please visit my website at www.sylvia-jonesmpp.ca

Mandatory voting no solution

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

Among a group of ideas recently dispatched to grassroot Liberals across the country is the old chestnut about what is called "compulsory voting."

The argument is that since 22 countries already practise it – although only 10 of those actually enforce it – and with voter turnout on a steady downhill trend, the time has come for Canada to adopt the system.

In the last federal election, for example, about 60 per cent of eligible voters trudged off to the polls. That means, of course, that 40 per cent of the electorate didn't vote.

The turnouts for provincial – and especially municipal – elections is even worse.

So it follows, according to mandatory voting advocates, that if people aren't going to exercise their "democratic" right to vote then we should force them to.

Doesn't sound very "democratic" to me. Quite the opposite.

In a free society such as ours, we have all sorts of rights. To be sure, they aren't unlimited, but we do have say, the right to free speech (as long as we don't libel or slander someone.) But the flip side of these rights is the "right" not to exercise the right.

Yes, we have free speech, but that doesn't mean we all have to head out to the nearest soap box and burst into political orations.

Voting, to me, is in the same category. I believe people should vote. We actually have a duty to vote. Millions have lost their lives fighting to keep that right – and other rights – that we enjoy, and it's hardly a great burden once every few years to lurch off to your nearby polling station and mark an "X" beside your choice.

When I was raising my five children, I always stressed the idea that voting is a privilege not enjoyed by many millions of people around the world, so it's the least you can do. Doesn't matter who you vote for. Just get out there and vote.

Since I've been old enough to vote – which is a longer time than I care to think about – I have never, ever missed the chance to vote, although I dare say my record of voting for winners is woefully inadequate.

Still, whether my choice wins or loses, I feel that I've done my duty and, in our representative system, the winners represent everybody, not just those who voted for them.

Still, there are many who argue that mandatory voting is a good thing. For sure, it will raise voter turnout. But this reason to take away the democratic right to choose, i.e. to choose not to vote, doesn't cut it with me. If a 60 per cent turnout – or even less – is somehow bad for democracy, then how come you are guaranteed a "win" with 50 per cent plus one? Shouldn't that number be higher too if the idea is that even 60 per cent is not representative of the public will?

In a piece a few years back in the Canadian Parliamentary Review, former Liberal MP and senator (since forced to resign in disgrace) Mac Harb argued strongly for mandatory voting, quoting, among others, then Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Pierre Kingsley as saying, "The right to vote is only meaningful when you use it."

Nonsense. Would they also argue that the right of free speech or freedom of religion – or all the other rights we enjoy – don't mean anything unless you use them? The fact we have these rights is what is meaningful, not whether or not you use them at any particular time.

In her Sunday Star column this week, journalist Susan Delacourt also picks up the cudgels in favour of mandatory voting, citing the downward trend of voter turnout as the compelling argument in their favour.

She also cites "the robocalls debacle, in which two judges have now issued rulings about a widespread voter-suppression scheme in 2011 (as) maybe the strongest argument in favour of mandatory voting."

Ah, no. For starters, the robocall scheme wasn't particularly widespread at all, but confined to a few ridings. It's also illegal, as it should be, and perpetrators have been penalized for it. And even with mandatory voting, that wouldn't have stopped these people from spreading false information to voters about where they had to go to cast their votes.

Still, it's one of those interesting – at least to those of us who enjoy politics – debates which keep popping up.

But the bottom line, to me at least, is that mandatory voting is simply not democratic.

Yes, you need a licence to drive a car. But we don't make you drive a car, do we? We give you free choice. That's how it works.

John Stegeman, of the Kinsmen Club of Bolton was joined by Councillors Rob Mezzapelli and Patti Foley in promoting the upcoming Terry Fox Run.

Bolton Kinsmen organize annual Terry Fox Run

The annual Terry Fox Run will once again be held in Bolton Sept. 14.

The Kinsmen Club of Bolton has been busy getting everything in order for another successful run.

Close to 100 runners, raising $14,000, participated last year and the goal for this year is to match and improve last year's efforts. The meeting place for all participants will be at the Bolton Kinsmen Centre at 35 Chapel St. opposite the former Baffo's restaurant. After a brief ceremony, the run will officially start at 9 a.m.

This year, a one-kilometre route along the Humber River will be set up. After the runners finish, hamburgers, hot dogs and pop will be served. Check out www.terryfox.org for pledge forms or call John Stegeman at 905-857-3051 for more information, or if you would like to purchase a Terry Fox T-shirt before the run.

The Terry Fox Foundation's mission is to maintain the vision and principles of Terry Fox while raising money for innovative cancer research through the annual Terry Fox Run.

In 1980, Terry Fox was a young man with cancer who wanted to make a contribution to the fight against the disease. One year later, Terry had touched the collective heart of all Canadians and today is one of this country's heroes.

Terry's Marathon of Hope was the start of a dream that eventually evolved a successful partnership between the Terry Fox Foundation and the National Cancer Institute of Canada.

Impaired charge after single-car accident

A 43-year-old man from Mississauga was charged Aug. 17 after a single vehicle accident on the east side of town.

Caledon OPP reports a concerned citizen contacted them at about 8:15 p.m. reporting a car was in a ditch on Albion Vaughan Road at Kirby Street. Officers went to the scene and found the driver outside the vehicle. He showed signs of being impaired, so he was arrested and taken to the detachment station for testing.

He was eventually charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle, driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system and driving without a licence.

His car was impounded for seven days.

Fires, brawls and alcohol in wild west of Adjala

By Brian Lockhart

This is the second to two articles about the lost town of Ballycroy, which was near the intersection of Highway 9 and 50.

When fire destroyed Ballycroy's Small Hotel and several other buildings in April of 1875, it also destroyed much of the heart of the small, but bustling frontier town.

The cause of the fire was never determined, but arson was considered, especially given that local entrepreneurs were known to be protective of their competing businesses.

When it was discovered that Peter Small held $21,000 in mortgages on the hotel — a huge sum at the time — the rumour mill went into overdrive. Small finally decided to leave town two years later, never to return.

Local stories still pass on the tragedy of the three girls who perished in the hotel fire. They were milliners (hat makers) who lived on top of the hotel. Except that they were hardly girls. Mary Fanning was 32 years old, Bridget Burke was 28, and Margaret Daly was the youngest at 24.

You have to read between the lines of this story for a more historical take on the tale.

In the 1870s, most pioneer women were already married and had children by age 20. Fanning, at 32, would have been considered an old spinster in her time. Why a town of only 200 people required three hat makers, all living above a hotel, leaves open a few other questions. But those answers are lost in time.

The three ladies were buried in St. James' Cemetery in Colgan with the grave marker easily located behind the church.

Not everyone in Ballycroy had a rough and tumble time making a living. In fact, many businesses prospered.

Businessman John McClelland opened a successful general store, ran the post office and apparently got along with all of his neighbours regardless of religious affiliation. His large home featured an upstairs dance hall and meeting room and also doubled as a hotel. It is the only standing building left of the town and is easily identified by its large frontier style facade.

McClelland's son eventually took over the store and over the next 100 years it was bought and sold many times.

The current owners of the property are Mo Vikrant and Elle Patille, a young couple who moved up from Toronto when they bought the place in May. They are currently renovating, but are careful to keep the original fixtures and design.

"The potential, the land, the history of the house," Mo said of why they were so impressed during their first visit. They made an offer the next day.

The house is 185 years old and has many unique challenges and more than enough character to fill a novel with descriptive phrases.

Elle was nice enough to offer a tour of the building and pointed out many features of the house.

The building is solid, with exterior walls that are about a foot thick. The rooms, and there are a lot of them, have full nine-foot ceilings and two separate stair cases lead to the floor. The dance and meeting hall still has the original floor, as does the rest of the house.

Inside the old post office and general store, the original shelves are still on the walls and the original wood counters have been put back in place. The building is a time capsule of life long ago.

The couple are well aware of the historic significance of the building and have become accustomed to curious history buffs stopping and taking photos.

So why did Ballycroy eventually fade away, leaving only the spirits of long ago residents to wander through a main street that no longer exists?

When the railways of the 19th century started connecting the nation in a way that was never before possible, the decision was made to run the line being built between Hamilton and Allandale south past Ballycroy to Palgrave.

That decision forced many businesses to leave Ballycroy to take advantage of the opportunities the opening of the railway offered. From there, the town slowly disappeared.

The Orange Lodge was finally declared dormant in 1943, and the post office closed in 1951.

All that is left of the main street is an overgrown path that slopes gently down through a wooded area and a single sign with the town's name that lets visitors know that this place once existed.

Strong start for Canadian Show Jumping Team at World Championships

The Canadian Show Jumping Team completed the first day of competition Tuesday standing sixth at the Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games in Caen, France. Individually, Ian Millar of Perth, was sitting in eighth position.

Canada is represented by Yann Candele, 43, of Caledon, Tiffany Foster, 30, of Vancouver, Eric Lamaze, 45, of Schomberg, Millar, 67, and alternate Chris Sorensen, 32, of Caledon.

All four members of the Canadian Team produced a clear round over the speed track set by French course designer Frédéric Cottier. Candele was the first Canadian on course, and only the fourth rider from a starting field of 153 entries. Conservative but efficient, he guided Showgirl, a 14-year-old chestnut selle francais mare owned by The Watermark Group, home in a time of 85.39 seconds. Candele ended the day in 47th individually in his second consecutive World Equestrian Games appearance.

“Today, I didn’t push my horse,” Candele explained. “I was efficient, the course developed well, and the rails were not going down, so I stayed on my pace where I knew the horse was comfortable and it worked out. We had a high expectation of putting in a good score for the spirit of the team. It happened, so we are very delighted.”

Foster was next in the ring for Canada, riding Verdi III, a 12-year-old bay Dutch Warmblood gelding for owner Artisan Farms LLC. Stopping the clock in 83.28 seconds, Foster was 28th individually after the first day.

“I am super happy; I thought my horse jumped really well,” Foster said. “He was working with me, which is great to feel on the first day of competition. I wasn’t able to go as fast as some of the other guys, but I took risks where I was able to, and I felt really happy with him.

“This was the hardest day for me because the bigger the jumps are, the better for him; if I can take a little time to get to them, I have a lot of confidence in him,” she explained, referencing that foot speed is not Verdi III’s greatest strength. “Ian and Eric are on faster horses that could give us good scores, and Yann and I did what we were supposed to do.”

As the afternoon session opened, Millar raised Canadian spirits even higher by producing an impressively fast round with Dixon, an 11-year-old bay Belgian Warmblood gelding owned by Susan and Ariel Grange. His time of 78.84 seconds would hold up for eighth position at the end of the day.

“There are over 150 horse-rider combinations here and pretty much all of them are plenty good,” noted the sage Millar. “When you look at that, it’s a daunting task, and that’s the mountain we have to climb here. I believe that’s what championships are all about. It brings out the best in everybody, and that’s what makes the competition so stunning.”

The stalwart of the Canadian Team with a world record 10 Olympic appearances, Millar noted, “We’ve all ridden together a lot, and I’m a great believer in synergy in a team, and this team has synergy. We know each other so well, we know each other’s horses, and we play off each other very well. That puts the circumstances in place for a great result.”

Lamaze echoed those sentiments, saying, “We have a very strong team. We didn’t come here to participate; we came here to get a medal.”

Lamaze did his part, clocking in at 80.94 seconds with Zigali P S, a 10-year-old dark bay Dutch Warmblood gelding, also owned by Carlene and Andy Ziegler’s Artisan Farms LLC. The pair closed the day in 17th individually, and Lamaze’s result vaulted Canada to sixth position overall in the team standings among 35 nations. With a total of six penalty points, Canada was less than a rail off the lead, which was held by France with 2.08 penalties at the end of the day. Sweden was in second with 3.01, the United States was third with 4.72, Germany was in fourth position with 4.82 and The Netherlands rounded out the top five with 4.83.

“It was a great team performance, including from Yann Candele who had to go fourth this morning; it is clearly a disadvantage to be drawn fourth in the speed competition at the world championships,” said Lamaze, defending bronze medalist from the 2010 Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games. “What we asked Yann to do was give us a secure score, not to take any chances, and he did a great job. As the day proceeded, we could risk a few things. Ultimately, we want all four riders to be strong and do their job and carry the momentum forward to tomorrow with no horses that are shaky.”

Following Tuesday’s speed phase, show jumping events continue with the two-round Nations’ Cup competition to determine both team medals and preliminary individual standings, yesterday (Wednesday) and today (results not known at press time). Following a day of rest, the top 30 riders in the individual standings will compete Saturday. In a format unique to world championship competition, the top four riders in the individual standings will advance to Sunday’s Final Four. World championship titles do not come easy; in the ultimate test of horsemanship, each rider will complete the course with their own mount before jumping the track with each of their competitor’s horses.

The Canadian team is led by Team Manager Karen Hendry-Ouellette, chef d’equipe Mark Laskin, veterinarian Dr. Sylvie Surprenant, and Darren Roberts as stable manager.

The Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games are held every four years and act as the world championships. The next edition of the Games will be hosted by Canada in Bromont, Quebec in 2018.

Yann Candele and Showgirl, owned by The Watermark Group, were 47th in the individual standings after the first day of show jumping Tuesday.

Quirke, Weber, Giantsopolous and Shaw win MJT titles at Osprey Valley

The Boston Pizza-presented Maple Leaf Junior Golf Tour’s two-day tournament at Osprey Valley Golf Course in Alton last weekend played out in the wet and cold of Aug. 16, which fortunately turned Aug. 17 with weather perfect for great scoring conditions.

“Osprey was in fantastic shape and proved to be a good challenge for all of our players,” said MJT Tournament Director Mike Skimson.

“We had some great battles in each of the four divisions through the rain and wind, and then on day two only Jack Quirke was able to maintain his lead in the Junior Boys 17-19 and win. All the other winners came from behind.”

Jack Quirke, 17, of Waterloo, fired back-to-back rounds of 74 for a 148 total, winning low overall and the MJT Junior title over both Devin Bartlett, 17, of Cambridge, (77 and 75 for 152) and Jason Kerr, 19, of Pattaya, Thailand (76 and 76 for 152).

In the MJT Juvenile Boys 15-16 division, Dennis Weber, 15, of Ancaster, pulled ahead of the pack to win his first title with fine rounds of 74 and 76 (150), holding off runner-up Nathan Douglas, 14, of Thornhill, (79 and 75 for 154), by four strokes. Third spot on the podium went to Trevor Corner, 16, of Mississauga, who shot 79 and 76 (155).

It took a playoff to decide the MJT Bantam Boys 14 and under title after both Angelo Giantsopoulos, 14, of Richmond Hill, (78 and 74 for 152) and Ewan MacBain, 14, of Toronto, (77 and 75 for 152) tied for the lead after 36 holes. Giantsopoulos won on the first playoff hole. Vince Greco, 14, of Bolton, came third in the division (81 and 74 for 155).

Sydney Shaw, 17, of Orchard Park, NY, made the trip to the tournament worth her while with a stellar closing round of 77 to win the MJT Girls division by two strokes (89 and 77 for 166) over Elanna Lachaine-DeMarchi, 17, of Cambridge (86 and 82 for 168). Cynthia Zhao, 14, of Toronto, came in third with scores of 87 and 82 (169).

Winners in the Mr. Lube Long Drive Competition were Lachaine-DeMarchi, Greco, Myles Schulz of Orangeville and Devin Bartlett of Cambridge. Sundog Eyewear Closest-to-the-Pin Competition winners were Cynthia Zhao, Alex Wyndham-West of King City, Nathan Douglas of Thornhill and Hayden Edworthy of Cambridge.

The Golf Town Comeback Awards for best second day improvement in score went to Sydney Shaw, Alexander Turchan of Conestogo, Evan Aikens-Armbruster of Waterloo, Cooper Trew of Midhurst.

Pan Am Games tickets available for request starting Sept. 15

There will be 1.4 million tickets becoming available through the TORONTO 2015 ticketing program for the biggest international multi-sport Games ever held in Canada.

They will become available Sept. 15, at 10 a.m.

The ticketing program gives fans early access to request the best tickets for the hottest events. Tickets will start at $20 and 75 per cent of tickets will go for $45 or less. The ticket request program will run for three weeks, ending Oct. 6 at 9 p.m.

People interested can request tickets online at TORONTO2015.org, or call 1-855-726-2015 toll-free from anywhere in Canada or the U.S.

Requested tickets will be placed in a lottery to ensure equal access to the most in-demand tickets. Note only over-subscribed events (more requests than tickets available) will go to lottery.

Customers who request tickets will receive an email before Dec. 1, prompting them to check their account to see whether their ticket requests were successful.

The remaining tickets will be available through general sale, where tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis, beginning in December.

For more information, visit TORONTO2015.org/tickets

Ride for Karen

Join cyclists from across Ontario Sept. 7 at the Ride for Karen, an annual fund-raising ride to send children with cancer to camp.

The fully-supported, premiere cycling event features a century ride (160 kilometres), as well as 25-km and 100-km routes, that start from the Markham Fairgrounds and roll through the countryside north of Toronto. There is also a Kids Fun Ride.

Started in 2002 as a tribute to Karen Tobias, who passed away from breast cancer, the event has raised more than $2 million with 100 per cent of the proceeds donated to charity.

Annual open house and fly-in

Brampton Flight Centre will commemorate 100th anniversary of start of First World War

Join the Brampton Flight Centre (BFC) and Great War Flying Museum (GWFM) for the annual open house and fly-in Sept. 7.

It will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Canadian aviation history will come to life as visitors walk through GWFM, a charitable organization and the only museum of its kind in Canada. Visitors will get a glimpse of wartime history through an impressive collection of First World War combat aircraft, including the Fokker Triplane that was flown by the Red Baron and the SE5 flown by Billy Bishop. Visitors will also witness military re-enactments and learn about the restoration of these treasured aircrafts. Photographs, uniforms and other interesting Great War memorabilia will also be on display. And starting at 11 a.m., replica fighter biplanes and triplanes will fly-by every hour.

Visitors will see a dazzling display of vintage, classic and modern aircraft and have the opportunity to fly a state-of-the-art full motion Redbird simulator. Cadets from the 892 Snowy Owl Squadron, based at the airport, will be on hand to talk about their programs, and the Recreational Aircraft Association will demonstrate their expertise and techniques for building airplanes.

The open house will also feature classic cars and motorcycles, live birds of prey, musical entertainment, face-painting, trackless train rides, balloon animal making for kids and a barbecue.

Other activities include tours of the airport and sightseeing flights. BFC flight instructors and pilots will answer questions about flight training programs and how to become a pilot. Kids and parents will also learn about the Centre's Kids Flight Camps.

BFC is owned and operated by the Brampton Flying Club. The Club was formed in 1946 and relocated to Caledon in 1969. The Flight Centre is an internationally recognized flight-training school and produces many of Canada's top pilots.

To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the start of the First World War, this year's open house will include a special aerial salute, known as the missing man formation, a tribute to those who fell during the Great War. Caledon Mayor Marolyn Morrison will present this solemn salute.

The Flight Centre welcomes one and all for this day of community celebration and aviation discovery. Admission is $5 per person or $20 per family, and parking is free. All proceeds go to support the Great War Flying Museum.

Visit bramptonflightcentre.com or call 905-838-1400, ext.333 for more details. To learn more about GWFM, visit greatwarflyingmuseum.com

DEATHSDEATHS*PRICE, Gladys May

It is with great sadness that the family of Gladys Price announce her passing on August 28, 2014 surrounded by her family at Headwaters Health Care Centre, Orangeville. Gladys will be lovingly remembered by her husband of 67 years, Harry, and his children Judy (Lee), Ken (Sue), Scott, and Debbie (Brody). Gladys will also be dearly remembered by her grandchildren Darren, Christine, Amanda, Austin, Candace and Alexa, and great-grandchildren Turner and Keira. Gladys was such a special lady to so many people for all her genuine acts of kindness and her role as Mrs. Claus for many years. We will love and remember her forever. Family received friends at the Dods & McNair Funeral Home & Chapel, 21 First St., Orangeville (519-941-1392) on Wednesday, September 3, 2014 from 2:00-4:00 and 7:00-9:00 p.m. Funeral Service was held at Community of Christ, 28 Mill St. E., Grand Valley on Thursday, September 4, 2014 at 11:00 a.m. Donations to the Heart & Stroke Foundation or Sick Kids Hospital would be appreciated by the family. A tree will be planted in memory of Gladys in the Dods & McNair Memorial Forest at the Island Lake Conservation Area, Orangeville. A dedication service will be held on Sunday, September 13th, 2015 at 2:30 p.m. (Condolences may be offered to the family at www.dodsandmcnair.com)

WHYTE, Harold K.

December 17, 1929 – August 31, 2014

Harold is embarking on a new journey in the After-Light. Harold was a wonderful loving man – as a Dad (to Kim), companion (to Christine), and good friend (to many people). His talents were numerous – Photographer, Videographer (film and digital) and a Creative Inventor. His loves included all of nature, birds, music and his home – Cedar Hollow Studio/Gallery. He was a great athlete – cross-country skiing, hiking and bike riding. His life-long accomplishments are many. Graduated with the class of 1949 from Ridley college (a Tiger); he acquired a wealth of experience through ten years in the newspaper industry (Toronto Telegram & the Star); a creative illustrator for Canadian magazines; television (CBC); industrial filmmaking, docu-dramas and video commissions. He was a master of balancing light, colour and composition. He changed with the times, mastering computer technology in his 80's; he believed technology heightened his works, but it was always about the light and Harold always waited patiently for the perfect light to bring

SANT, Francis Joseph 'Frank'

Peacefully at Brampton Civic Hospital on Saturday, August 30, 2014, Frank Sant, Kleinburg, in his 81st year, beloved husband of Margaret Benson.
